The evaluation for the AJC's Top Workplaces Program is based entirely upon feedback from a seven-point Likert Scale employee survey, conducted by Workplace Dynamics in the fall of 2012. Each statement was strategically tested to ensure a high correlation with how employees rate their workplace.

"This honor is a testament to our incredible team of employees, who continually rise to the occasion and provide superb solutions to our customers' most challenging initiatives, said Eddie Capel, president and chief executive officer, Manhattan Associates. "We measure the success of our company by the satisfaction of our employees and our clients. We couldn't be more proud of our team."
